Festivals

History and traditions that are passed on down

Hanawa Bayashi

The Hanawa Bayashi has been designated as a national important intangible folk cultural asset, and is said to be the best Festival music in Japan. Competing musical accompaniments on 10 gorgeous festival carts walk through town.

Dainichido-Bugaku (UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage)

This traditional performance art has roughly a 1300 year history. Performers wearing golden masks dance the "Godaisonmai" and other Bugaku in this performance of a nationally designated intangible folk cultural asset.

Kemanai Bon Odori

This Bon Odori is a nationally designated important intangible folk cultural asset. In this exciting dance, participants with their heads wrapped in towels dance in circles around fires set up on the road.

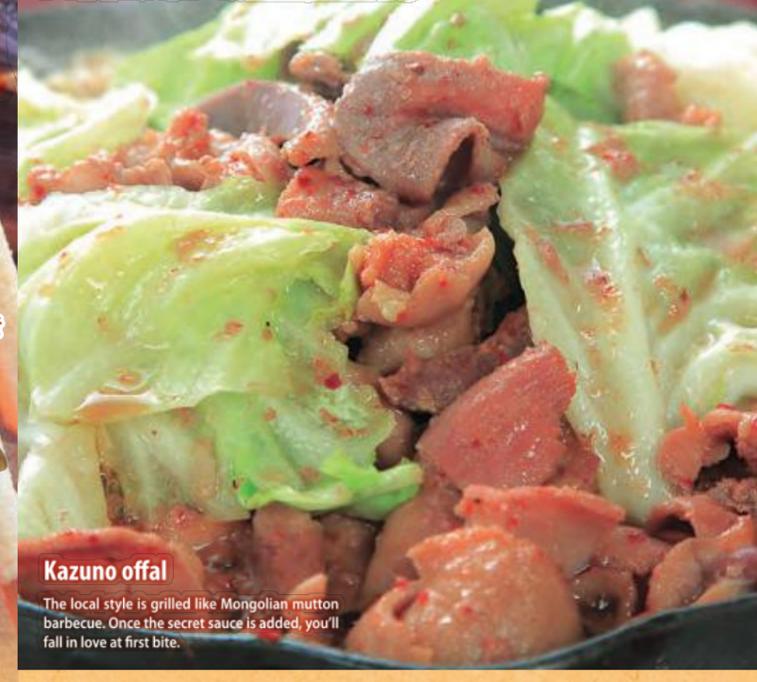

Kazuno is the birthplace of Akita's famous kiritanpo.

Kiritanpo

Kazuno is the birthplace of Akita's famous kiritanpo. "Kiritanpo nabe" is a local dish with chicken and vegetables boiled together. If you're hungry, we recommend "Misozuke tanpo," with sweet miso roasted over coals.

Famous delicacies

Kazuno offal

The local style is grilled like Mongolian mutton barbecue. Once the secret sauce is added, you'll fall in love at first bite.

Hachimantai Pork

These brand name pigs are raised in an ideal natural environment, given carefully selected feed, and under careful health supervision.

Kazuno Beef

Raising these cows on an organic diet has made this meat both healthy and extremely delicious.

Kazuno Peaches of the Far North

These peaches are harvested later than others, and are on the market in mid-September. In order to maintain a consistent quality, each one is treated with care.

Kazuno Apples

The extreme difference between the warm and cold seasons in Kazuno give the apples a high sugar content, and fill your mouth with their sweet juices when you bite into them.
